VOICES OF THE REVOLUTION

"The sum of my argument is ...That no parts of his Majesty's dominions can be taxed without their consent: That every part has the right to be represented in the supreme or some subordinate legislature: That the refusal of this, would seem to be a contradiction in practice to the theory of the (British) constitution."

James Otis (Boston Lawyer) 1764

A Message from the President

This past year we have focused mainly on the processing of papers for new members. Regardless who the officers are for this year, total participation of the membership will be required for our chapter to grow and progress. It is imperative at the January meeting that we give serious thought to whom the officers should be and decide if we want a formal public installation in April.
