President's Message:

Our November meeting should be very interesting. Ms. Julie Avedikian's program is entitled "DNA 101". We all will probably learn more about this up and coming topic. Also Wednesday November 11th is Veterans Day (it was called Armistice Day) and signifies the end of World War I. The Armistice was signed on the 11th day of the 11th month at 11 AM. We enjoyed a good meeting in October with Tom Crowe presenting a program on the War of 1806.

Our November meeting is an important one as we will have the Officer slate for 2021 presented. We will vote on the slate at our December meeting. Also, Bob Kubin will be presenting our 2021 budget for your consideration. That too will be voted on at the December meeting. I hope we have a good turnout Thursday.

Dennis A. Vierling Color Guard Commander:

Compatriots,

In continuing my description of Revolutionary War Uniforms, I am going to provide a history of the Continental Army Uniforms. Until 1779, the Continental Army Uniforms varied in

Soldiers in New England wore blue coats, white facings and white linings. New York and New Jersey soldiers wore buff facings with white linings. The Mid-Atlantic States of Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania wore red facings with white linings. The Southern States of Georgia, North and South Carolina wore blue facings with white linings. Starting in 1779 George Washington ordered soldiers of the Continental Army to wear blue coats, white waistcoats and facings of various colors. Each state regiment had different colors for linings and facings.

General Washington chose blue coats because it was in direct contrast to the British soldiers who wore red uniforms. In 1782 blue coats with red facings became the standard for all states except for Generals and their staff who wore blue coats with buff facings.

In David McCullough's book "1776" the "Delaware Blues", a force of 800 soldiers, the largest battalion in the army, were the first to wear red trimmed blue coats with white waistcoats while marching through New York City on their way to "The Battle of New York".

Since, I was first commissioned by The University of Delaware's ROTC Program, these color choices influenced my SAR Color Guard Uniform decision.
